Campus Recruiting Program (CRP)

Each semester Career Services provides an opportunity for graduating students to interview with employers through the Campus Recruiting Program on the New York City and Westchester campuses. Students eligible for recruiting must be completing a Bachelor or Masters degree in January, June, or September 2015. If you finish classes in December 2014 you are considered a January 2015 graduate and not yet eligible for this program.

All students interested in recruiting must attend an orientation workshop held at the beginning of each semester. Registration with Career Services is necessary for participation and access to the online eRecruiting system. Information online includes participating employers, majors sought, types of positions and dates on campus. In addition, students may select the employers they wish to receive their resume, find out if they have been chosen for an interview and sign up for an interview online.

Participating Employers

There are many factors which affect the amount of campus recruiting activity year to year on all college campuses. Such variables as supply and demand, employment trends, the economy in general, and unemployment rates influence the types of organizations that visit a college campus to recruit graduates.

Generally, there are not a lot of employers participating in campus recruiting in fields where there is an abundance of candidates or for which there are very few vacancies within a given organization. This includes many positions in the fields of advertising, communications, investment banking, consulting, government, law enforcement, nursing and education. Although employers may come to campus to recruit in these fields, students should not rely on the Campus Recruiting Program to find employment. Therefore, students seeking these types of positions should consult early on with a Career Counselor regarding implementing a self-directed job search as well as other resources Career Services can provide.

Reciprocity With Other College/Universities

Career centers at other universities are often willing to set up a reciprocity arrangement enabling new Pace alumni to use limited services. These services do not include participation in recruiting, access to university alumni, and may or may not include individual appointments with professional staff. If you wish us to write a letter of reciprocity, please send us the name of the institution, name of director of the career center, and mailing address.
