Official Custom Graduation Gown Program Approved

Pace University has announced that an official custom graduation gown program has recently been approved, creating a commencement experience that will set apart Pace University and its graduates. This exciting new program will be implemented at the upcoming spring graduation ceremonies.

The new customized program will allow Pace University to continue its long-standing tradition of giving students top-quality graduation gowns and accessories. Herff Jones – the nation's oldest and most respected manufacturer of graduation regalia- has been selected to be the exclusive supplier for this program. They have been providing top quality products to universities across the country for more than 80 years, and the company's track record was very important in the decision to go with this respected company.

The new custom gown uniquely signifies the Pace experience through the use of school colors and seal and instantly differentiates a Pace University graduate from any other graduate. Gowns at Pace will now be royal blue with gold panels and collars. Each gown will bear the Pace University seal as well. All bachelor, master, and doctorate graduates will be able to participate in this new tradition.

"Students who attend Pace University have high standards – and want to be able to celebrate their school pride as they graduate," Steve Clarke, Herff Jones Sales Professional said. "We're committed to offering the gowns that meet and exceed their standards and give them regalia that they'll wear proudly. These gowns definitely live up to the standards we've set for ourselves, also."
