

Pace Environmental Law Faculty Publications (January 1, 2008 & December 31, 2010)

The environmental law professors at Pace Law School have a broad range and depth of expertise in environmental law. They are both prominent scholars and practitioners, who are recognized as national and world leaders in their fields. Staying current with the latest trends and emerging fields, our environmental faculty brings diverse and unique perspectives to the classroom. In addition to teaching, faculty members publish books, chapters, and articles, and frequently lecture at universities, organizations, and conferences at home and abroad. The following list highlights the publications and presentations of the full-time environmental faculty from January 2008 to December 2010.
