Health Savings Account (HSA)

HSA is an account you can contribute to with pretax money deducted from your paycheck. This money is used for eligible health care expenses.

- Used with a high deductible health plan (HDHP)
  - Insurance that does not cover first dollar medical expenses (except for preventive care)
- Helps reduce taxable income and increases take home pay!
- Use funds for current, and future, eligible health expenses (expense list found on member website)
- Unused funds roll over from year to year
- Contribute pre-tax and post-tax dollars
- Owned by individual, portable, not forfeited
- Triple tax advantage
  - Contributions (individuals/employers)
  - Interest and earnings on account balance
  - Qualified withdrawals
Qualifying for an HSA

To be an eligible individual and qualify for an HSA, you must meet the following requirements:

- You must be covered under an HDHP, on the first day of the month
- You have no other health coverage
- You are not enrolled in Medicare
- You can’t have received care under Veterans Administration (VA) benefits in the last three months, unless you were treated for a service-connected disability.
- You can not be claimed as a dependent on someone else’s tax return
- You or your spouse cannot have a regular Flexible Spending Account (FSA) or a Health Reimbursement Account (HRA)
- Self-employed, partners, owners (2% shareholders) and S-Corporation shareholders are generally not considered employees and cannot make pre-tax contributions to their HSA through the company by salary reduction. In addition, any contributions (including employer contributions) made to their HSAs by the corporation are taxable income. However, they can make their own personal contributions to their HSAs and take the "above-the-line" deduction on their personal income taxes.
Qualifying for an HSA

- When opening an HSA Bank Account the account holder is the only one that must meet the IRS eligibility requirements even if covered under a family medical plan.

- Using your HSA funds:
  - You can use the money in your HSA to pay for medical care for family members.
  - You may withdraw funds to pay for the qualified medical expenses of yourself, your spouse or a dependent without tax penalty. Even if the spouse or the a dependent* does not meet the eligibility requirements to contribute to an HSA.

  *Dependent must be a tax dependent
HSA Contributions

- Contributions can be made by anyone – individual, employers, eligible family member or combination

- Payroll deduction, lump sum, EFT, or combination

- Maximum contribution is equal to $3,650 individual* / $7,300 family*

- Catch-up contributions age 55+
  - $1,000*
  - No contributions permitted if Medicare enrolled

- Make a one-time transfer from your IRA (Individual Retirement Account) – there are no taxes involved and the amount counts toward your HSA contribution limit for the year.

- Contributions may be made until the tax filing deadline in April of the following year for current year

* For 2022 - subject to COLA (cost of living adjustment) in future years
HSA Withdrawals

- Withdrawals
  - Debit Card (select debit or credit; debits will need a PIN to complete transaction)
  - Make a payment to a provider
  - Pay for expense out of pocket and make a withdrawal to pay yourself back by transferring to a linked bank account

- Permitted even if you are no longer eligible to contribute
  - If you are Medicare enrolled
  - If you are no longer enrolled in HDHP

- Tax-free transfer to spouse upon employee death

- Divided/disbursed in accordance with divorce decree

- Insurance premiums are not a qualified withdrawal, except if
  - Long-term care insurance premiums
  - COBRA premiums
  - Premiums while receiving unemployment
  - Premium for Medicare Part B, C, D, excluding Medicare Supplement (i.e., Medigap)

- Non-qualified withdrawals are
  - Taxable, plus 20% penalty if under the age of 65
  - Taxable, no penalty if used for non-qualified expenses if over the age of 65
  - Taxable to beneficiary if the beneficiary is not the spouse
IRS Regulations

- You can cover dependents up to age to 26
  - Effective September 23, 2010, or upon Plan Renewal date after September 23, 2010, health plans must cover adult dependents until they reach age 26. They do not even have to be college students. But the tax law did not change. You could have under your health plan a dependent adult who is not a dependent for tax purposes. That means you’ll pay a penalty plus taxes if you use the pretax dollars from your HSA to pay health expenses for your older covered dependent.

- Full-Year contribution for mid-year hires with HDHP
  - Permits a full-year HSA contribution for a person who joins HDHP in a month other than January. However, the individual must complete the IRS testing period by remaining in the HDHP for the rest of the current year including the next 12 consecutive months or may be subject to taxes and IRS penalties.

- Domestic Partner
  - In instances where the Domestic Partner does not qualify as a dependent (typically the case), the Domestic Partner should establish their own HSA Account to use for their own qualified medical expenses. Domestic Partner may establish an account with PayFlex or any HSA institution. General information about the rules for determining who qualifies as a dependent can be found on the IRS website at: www.irs.gov.
IRS Regulations

- Establishment Date
  - Your HSA must be established before qualified medical expenses are incurred to receive distributions free from federal taxes and state tax (for most states). The “Establishment Date” of an HSA is important because an accountholder can only receive tax-free distributions from his/her HSA to pay or be reimbursed for qualified medical expenses incurred after the date the HSA is considered “established” (See IRS Notice 2004-02; Q&A 26).

- Individual No Longer in HDHP
  - Individual can no longer contribute to HSA
  - Individual keeps funds if in an HSA and use for qualified medical expenses
  - HSA balance options:
    - Maintain with PayFlex for a monthly fee
    - Transfer to another HSA administrator
    - Close HSA, roll funds to another HSA administrator within 60 days
    - Close HSA, receive funds subject to taxes and penalties
June 25, 2008, the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) issued Notice 2008-59 that provided guidance on Health Savings Accounts (HSAs).

- This guidance only allows for an employer to recoup funds when an employee was never eligible for an HSA or when the contribution exceeds the statutory annual maximum.
- We will not accept negative contributions on an employer funding file, nor can we process a negative contribution at the direction of an employer.
- If an employer includes a negative contribution on a file, this will delay funding to that employee.
- As an alternative, the employer may have the option to offset a future deduction for those employees who are still participating in the employer-sponsored HSA.
- For those situations where the employee was never eligible for an HSA or has reached the statutory annual maximum, the employer should contact their HSA Account Manager.
- Should you request to reverse mistaken contributions reported by you, the employer, you must provide an email with all of the details. You must provide clear, documented evidence of the mistake and PayFlex will review for possibly resolution.
State Tax Information

- While health savings accounts (HSAs) were created by the federal government, the decision to allow tax deductions for HSA contributions at the state level is owned by the individual states.

- PayFlex will monitor progress on changes to state decisions and notify our clients in the event that a state should make a change.

- Consult your financial advisor or state department of revenue for updates on these states and for additional information regarding state tax with regards to HSAs.
HSA Record Keeping

- Should the HSA account holder keep receipts? YES!
  - Can upload images of receipts through mobile app
- May need to prove to IRS that distributions from HSA were for qualified expenses.
- Note: Account holder should not send these records with their tax return. Account holder would keep them with their tax records. Set aside qualified expense receipts in an envelope in case audited.

Designating a Beneficiary

- Participants should choose a beneficiary when electing the HSA
- If spouse is the designated beneficiary:
  - If your spouse is the designated beneficiary of your HSA, it will be treated as your spouse's HSA after your death.
- If spouse is not the designated beneficiary:
  - The account stops being an HSA, and
  - The fair market value of the HSA becomes taxable to the beneficiary in the year in which you die.
  - If your estate is the beneficiary, the value is included on your final income tax return.
