STEM AT PACE UNIVERSITY

Pace University offers more than 45 degrees with science, technology, engineering, and mathematics (STEM) designation. All of our programs provide a practical education grounded in theory that synthesizes classroom work with the real world through internships, civic involvement, and independent student/faculty research. This type of academic engagement transforms passive learning into purposeful action that prepares you for a future in the STEM job market.

Benefits for International Students

International students who graduate from a designated STEM degree program can remain in the US for a total of 36 months through an Optional Practical Training (OPT) STEM extension. Under the traditional OPT program, international students who graduate from colleges and universities in the US are able to remain in the country and receive training through work experience for up to 12 months.

To learn more about the OPT STEM extension program, visit www.pace.edu/STEMOPT.
Pace University’s STEM-designated degree programs encompass a wide range of disciplines and fields of study, including science, technology, engineering, math, and business.
