

Pace University: Greek Life Relationship Statement

Whereas, Fraternities/Sororities have been closely identified with the purposes of American higher education since the first students at the College of William and Mary met to form Phi Beta Kappa in 1776.

Whereas, These students were motivated by the commonly expressed need for belonging—to encourage scholarship, to emulate high purpose, to discuss the great intellectual, social, and political concerns, and to share in literary presentations and debates on the great moral issues of the day.

Whereas, Fraternities/Sororities were always associated with the host college or university, and served to espouse the purposes and missions of their respective institution of learning.

Whereas, Host institutions which have made the decision to foster and encourage fraternity/sorority experience as one option of leadership training and educational experience for their students, have affirmed the values which can accrue to the individual students and benefit the varied communities of the host institution.

Whereas, Loyalty to alma mater, fraternity/sorority member's persistence to graduation, and more concerned involvement with the welfare of the college and university are documented advantages and benefits for colleges and universities in making the decision to encourage and support fraternity/sorority chapters.

Whereas, The administration, faculty, community, alumni undergraduates, general fraternity/sorority volunteers, and general fraternity/sorority national/international professional staff members seek shared partnership for the perpetuation of excellence in college and university fraternal organizations.
