DOS AND DON'TS FOR SUPPORTING A FRIEND

DO

- Put them at ease and try to help them create a safe environment. Let them know that you are there for them and receptive to what they are saying.
- Affirm their feelings and express admiration for their courage to share with you.
- Emphasize and verbalize your stance against the abuse they have experienced.
- Follow their lead and support their desires. Respect the decisions they are making regarding their care.
- Be mindful of your self-care. You can better respond to a survivor's needs if you also take care of yourself.
- It's important to—while respecting the survivor's confidentiality—reach out to your own support system and be realistic about how much you are able to provide.

DON'T

- Question the validity of the survivor's claims.
- Make excuses for the person who caused harm.
- Share the survivor's story without their consent.
- Give the survivor any ultimatums.
- Minimize the assault.
- "Investigate" what the survivor is saying. Avoid asking why questions or asking for more details than the survivor is willing/able to share.
