A research team with Pace University in New York believes you might be a good match for the following study:

Stress, anxiety and overall mental health of an individual diagnosed with Chronic Respiratory Diseases (CRD). The goal of this study is to better understand the psychological and emotional experiences of individuals living with CRDs, including how these conditions may impact daily life, stress levels, and overall well-being. Findings from this study will help inform the development of programs, resources, and policies to better support individuals managing chronic respiratory conditions.

You may be eligible for this study if:

1. You have been diagnosed with a chronic respiratory disease (such as asthma, COPD, or another long-term respiratory condition)
2. You are 18 years of age or older
3. Willingness to complete online health questionnaires

What does participation involve?

- One study session lasting approximately 60–90 minutes
- The session may take place virtually
