

Jerry McKinstry

LONGTIME JOURNALIST JOINS PACE

Jerry McKinstry, a former journalist and communications executive who has held a combination of roles in news media, government and public relations agencies in the region, has been named director of public affairs for Pace University in Westchester.

Prior to joining Pace, McKinstry was director of strategic communications at Harrison Edwards PR in Armonk, and previously served as former Westchester County Executive Robert P. Astorino's deputy communications director.