ONE PACE PLAZA NEW YORK, NY 10038

November 12, 2018

Dear Pace Community,

Today is the observance of Veterans Day, when we remember and honor the service of all our nation's veterans.

Here at Pace, we especially recognize our student veterans and the veterans among our faculty and staff. More than 300 students, across our three campuses, have volunteered to serve in America's armed forces. They are a special and valued part of the Pace Community, and we're honored that they chose to pursue their educations here. We will always do everything we can to support them in their transition from service to student.

I am proud that the Pace chapter of the Student Veterans of America marched in the Veterans Day Parade on Fifth Avenue yesterday. That was a chance for our city and state to celebrate and thank these brave men and women for their service and sacrifice.

Please take some time today to join me in personally thanking our students, faculty, and staff who wore the uniform. I'll be meeting with student veterans in Pleasantville today and in New York City later this week, and I am looking forward to my chance to do just that in person.

For now, let me say to all of the veterans in our community, on behalf of all of Pace University: Thank you for all that you've done for us as Americans and to benefit the Pace Community.

Sincerely,

Marvin Krislov
President
